Legend... A legend is a story or tales about people, places, or events in the past. Some people believe in it sincerely, but they lack real evidence to prove its truth. Examples include the legends of Hercules or Zeus in the ancient popular culture of the Romans and Greeks.

When delving into the deceptive mist of the past, mixed with illusions, lies, and truths, the rose-colored city is too true to be a legend or a fabricated illusion of a mesmerized writer. Does it compare to rugged rocky mountains carved by mighty human hands, producing living examples of the most beautiful creations of human imagination and a challenge to human capabilities?

It's more than a legend; it's a human masterpiece or the rose-colored paradise on Earth.
